

MERCHANTS TO AID HOUSEWIVES' FIGHT ON FOOD GAMBLERS

East Side Chamber of Commerce Pledges Support to Protective Association.

Enthusiastic support to The Evening World Housewives' Protective Association was pledged by the East Side Chamber of Commerce at its meeting at No. 216 Second Street last night. Alleging there are enough willing men, women and children on the east side to carry The Evening World Housewives' Protective Association plan to success, Assemblyman Nathan D. Perlman made a stirring appeal to merchants to join in the movement. He characterized the food situation in the section as truly alarming, and recommended immediate action for the relief of the poverty stricken housewives due to the alarming increase in the price of foodstuffs. He pointed out that The Evening World had formulated a comprehensive and definite plan, with unity of action behind it, and that the merchants should urge their customers to become members.

"Let the women of the east side rally behind The Evening World in its determined crusade to free the city from the pestiferous clutches of food speculators," he said. "When the women learn through you of The Evening World's movement, designed to release food from the control of the speculators, they will flock to the Housewives' Association and help in the campaign. These skyrocketing prices are causing indescribable suffering, but the situation can be met successfully if the women will join the association."

A scathing attack upon the food pirates was made by Abraham Lustig, attorney for the board, who added: "I note with satisfaction that The Evening World Housewives' Protective Association is vigorously supporting the Lever bill. It is a move in the right direction, and it is the imperative duty of the women not only of the east side but throughout the city to aid. Congress should pass this measure. The must be a regulation of the food prices or the poor of the city will be at the mercy of these unscrupulous gamblers. If Congress could but realize or comprehend the significance of the food situation among the wage earners they would have no hesitancy in passing this measure."

After lauding The Evening World's efforts in connection with the Widows' Pension and Penny Lunch movements, Abraham Epstein said:

"The Evening World has proved absolutely dependable. It can be trusted in this important food campaign. Let the merchants recommend the use of substitutes to the consumers. There is plenty of food which furnish real nourishment and contain all the elements necessary to feed the body. A wise choice of cereals instead of potatoes would serve as well and far more cheaply. And these substitutions would be a knockout for the food gambler."

"I congratulate The Evening World for inaugurating this movement. It has already accomplished much. It has brought us together to consider this condition in its true light. If this had been done last February, there would have been no riots on the east side."

Following an address by Harry H. Schlacht, the board adopted resolutions pledging its wholehearted support to The Evening World's Housewives Protective Association.

What promises to be one of the biggest food rallies since the inception of The Evening World's Housewives Protective Association movement will be held to-night in the large auditorium of the Morris High School at One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street and Boston Road. This will be the first Bronx meeting. Elaborate preparations have been perfected for the Bronx invasion by all the parent associations in that section, under the Neighborhood Association No. 34. Rev. Dr. Zierdorf will preside, and the list of speakers includes Bird S. Coler, Sophie Lobinger, Rosalie Dugan and other prominent men and women. The People's Institute, through Miss Alleyne Archibald will hold an Evening World's Housewives rally at Public School No. 40, No. 320 East Twentieth Street.

Annual June Sale of Men's Fine Suits

Really extraordinary under war conditions

Brand-new clothing fresh from the manufacturing tailors, in 16 models and 148 patterns

At Two Prices---$19.50 and $24.50

Thirty-five of the country's woolen mills are withdrawn from the public markets. They are devoting ALL their time to making war fabrics for the government.

Half of the fabrics we have picked out from samples submitted by our manufacturing tailors for NEXT FALL'S STOCK have been returned marked "can't procure."

Prices are still climbing on whatever fabrics are procurable.

Just what clothing can be prepared for the next season is at present largely conjecture.

In one lot are some "custom suitings," bought two years ago at old low prices and held by the manufacturer for his made-to-measure tailoring business which he does in various cities.

Other lots comprise the fabrics that were the "best sellers" in another manufacturer's sample line during the past year.

ALL LOTS WERE BOUGHT AT LARGE DISCOUNTS and better yet, they are marked now AT
EVEN LESS THAN OUR USUAL RATE OF PROFIT.

So good are the suits, so clean are the patterns, so low are the prices, considering what is ahead in men's clothing, that every single suit ought to sell out tomorrow.

The Spirited Ideas of Young Men

are reflected in many of the styles—some straight cut, patch pocket suits; with plenty of conservative models and quiet fabrics for more mature tastes.

Stout, tall, short, long men—all figures can be fitted, we believe, unless a prodigy appears.

The 42 fabrics at $19.50 and the 106 fabrics at $24.50 present all-wanted cool, soft cloths for summer—unfinished worsteds, serges, mottled homespun, flannels in solid grays, browns, blues, as well as the popular mixture and color schemes—chalk lines, herringbones, peppers-and-salt, shepherds checks, Glen Urquhart plaids, hair-lines, tartan stripings—well, you simply must come and see all of them, that's the best way.
